Dear Nathan:

As I promised at EAC, I am enclosing a double-struck 1804 C13. Like almost all of these double-struck coins, it shows only on the obverse. At least there is nothing on the reverse that I can confidently claim as evidence of double-striking.

The coin clearly is low grade, but it has a very nice doubling of the mouth, nose, chin, and forehead. The coin was purchased by me as Lot 47 at the 1991 EAC Convention sale. According to my records, the cost was $450. If you want to keep it, you can have it at the same price.

Dear Tett,

I am in receipt of your doubled 1804 Liberty half cent. I indeed love the doubling on this specimen; real 1804 coins are also a magical date; especially since I live at the other end of the Lewis and Clark trail which corresponds exactly to their production run. I have enclosed a check for $450 and even own a copy of the EAC catalog from 1991 (which predated my entry into EAC). I love the "Photos, Do Not Bend"...worked like a charm.

Thanks again for organizing this year's convention and allowing some silver to slip into the displays...I am encouraged by the warm reception for JR members and displays and hope these conventions will serve as an educational focus for both groups.

I hope your trip to Western China went well...we will need to share stories next time. My wife and I spent a month backpacking through Dali, Lijang and other remote places early 1989 just one month before Tiananmen Square...of which we were blissfully unaware. My exposure on the cliffs of Tiger Leaping Gorge pushed my own acrophobic limits....I'll be interested in your experience. Hope all is well.
